Tarek Baig

Chaminade College Preparatory School

My summer internship was with the Social Studies Department at Chaminade College Preparatory School. I was supervised by Will Armon, chair of the Social Studies Department. My primary responsibility was online research. Because of COVID, Chaminade shifted to virtual learning during my internship, greatly increasing the importance of my work to the school's teachers and students. This work included searching the internet for factually-accurate U.S. History content as well as materials that were then used by Chaminade's teachers. Locating and then carefully assessing internet sources for historical accuracy greatly sharpened my investigative and analytical skills. Likewise, working with deadlines and collaborating with teachers improved my time management, communication, and team work skills. Dr. Armon was an excellent supervisor who wrote a great recommendation on my LinkedIn account! All totaled, my internship was an excellent and rewarding experience in which I acquired new skills and enhanced pre-existing ones while doing important work.
